

Dear Sirs: I am extremely concerned about the concentration of power and therefore information flow occurring already in the media world. Our First Amendment rights cannot be exercised if only a few, big business type, individuals control most of our rapid information getting processes. I urge you not only to block the current effort on the part of big business to further restrict this market place but also to tighten already existing rules so that no small number of people or boards of directors can control even a tenth share on any market area. Our freedom depends completely on a free, broad spectrum flow of information via TV, film, print, and radio. Please say no to this attempt to concentrate power in even fewer hands. Sincerely, A. K. Trenhoome, Ph.D.
